

RICH LUSTROUS BESPOKE

Leather floors have been around for many years and today leather walls and floors still remain a creative opportunity for the architectural and interior design industry due to a better understanding that leather floors have durability and longevity provided they are looked after.

Leather, like French polished antique wood, gradually develops a patina with polishing over time, taking on a richer and richer look so that it eventually mellows into the lustrous quality that so many strive for.

TWS laid their first floors some 35 years ago and have been developing ways of treating leather for a number of years so the lustrous patina is available from day one.

This has now been developed into their bespoke Regency Range, "The ultimate flooring and walling experience" which spares no expense. All materials are of the highest quality and every tile is hand dyed, hand finished and hand assembled either on or off board so that quality is the sole aim.

This bespoke service means they can produce, according to your individual designs, any size (up to 1.2m by 1.5m), shape and colour you want, all with the lustrous patina from day one. You can even have your own personal embossing or inlaying in the full knowledge that your design will be absolutely exclusive.

In addition, our standard range of leather floor tiles remain available.
